The farmhouse has been carefully renovated, keeping the main features intact and using the original materials, remaining faithful to its origins even today. The interior of the farmhouse is approximately 370 m2 and is a typical Cortonese home. At the moment, due to needs, the farmhouse has been divided into two apartments which can already be joined together. On the ground floor, there is a kitchen, dining room, living room, bathroom and bedroom. On the first floor apartment with independent entrance, there is a beautiful living room with fireplace, which leads to two spacious bedrooms, double bedrooms with private bathroom, one of which has a wonderful built-in wardrobe. from here you go down to the ground floor where there is a beautiful living room which can be connected to the apartment on the ground floor. Original features, such as exposed beams, and the fine flooring with original stones, give a touch of authenticity and warmth to the rooms. The property also includes a former woodshed renovated with attention to detail: it offers further spaces to customize, with an open view of the surrounding nature.
